Professor Diaz promoted me to black belt in 2001 and Sandan in 2008.

In 2012 Prof. LaGue promoted me to Roku Dan.

I decided to establish my school named Bushindo Jujitsu Ecuador in 2006 to be able to better spread the art.

We currently have three schools in Guayaquil, and I am now teaching civilians as well as special forces, according to their respective self-defense or tactical needs in hand-to-hand combat.

Our Dojo has a wide variety of techniques that include throws, constrictions, strikes, locks, traditional weapons (kobujutsu) and healing arts.

Additionally, the teaching methodology I have been working with allows my students not only to develop their self-defense skills, but also the philosophical aspects of traditional Jujitsu.
